Kind of a one note game, but it's a brown note so it works. Short and sweet with a whimsical bouquet. Doesn't linger on the palette longer than it's welcome. Invites you back for another whiff later.. I've usually been more into tactical games like Combat Mission, etc. So I was a little dubious about how much I would get into this game. I have only played it 7 hours so far. I have finished the tutorial and am half way thru the US campaign. I have already made my own scenario called, "A River runs thru it." The editor was probably the easiest one I've ever seen yet quite capable. Have not played the multiplayer yet. But so far I have to say I am enjoying this game. I spent some time today in the manual to pick up and better understand some of the games' nuances like cards and unit tokens. I bought the game itself along with both DLCs for less than $35 which isnt too bad. I think I will get my money's worth. You can always wait for a sale as both Steam and matrix games have them from time to time. Or, after watching some youtube streams and videos, you can go for it like I did. I am still however, trying to understand the gold/purchase part of the game and dont particulatily care for that aspect so far. But thats my only complaint so far. Would like to see some more terrain tiles besides just Normandy and definately some more DLCs like desert war and east front... The multiplayer (the reason I bought this game) barely functions. The desync issues are so bad that you anyone who's not the host finds themselves dying across the map from an enemy that they can't see. This game was released from early access far too early. Would you put this on store shelves without a working multiplayer? There's little to no information on the internet about the actual functionality problems in this game so hopefully this will shed some light. Don't misunderstand me, this game is not bad, I find it really fun, but DO NOT buy this game until it's actually worth being fing called "fully released". There are posts back from March and April where the Devs said they were going to fix the desync bugs as fast as they could but nothing has changed as of yet.. Fun and cute little space shooter. Recommended! 🎮🎮. This game just released and I read some positive reveiws, but I felt like it was missing a lot. It's in early access, but I feel like it wasn't really ready yet. There are almost no sound effects, weapon attacks don't have any impact, and I just didn't enjoy the slow paced outdated combat.

Wait until it gets some more updates.

EDIT: This game has been abandoned, buy at your own risk.

- 8.7/10 - One of The Best!

Get if You Like Trains and Free-Place City Builders!. I've loved the Nancy Drew books since my youth. I'd also apparently lived under a rock for quite some time because I hadn't known that games were made based in her adventures. I really enjoyed this game since it was one that made you think and combined some casual games with some not so causal ones. I especially liked working with the wolf.

That darn Fox and Geese game irritated me greatly though. The man just wouldn't go to the quarter I needed him in. It took some time to get the wins I needed for that puzzle. I also am now going to have to get a Fox and Geese board for the kids and I.

I really recommend this game to a mystery lover that likes to think. I don't recommend it to those that are used to games that are just bash and trash.. I really want to give this a positive review, but it has many flaws. While I did have fun playing it, the physics of the puck and its interaction with your gear is horrible. I couldnt even figure out how to hit the puck out of the way with my stick once I blocked it. If these bugs are fixed and the blocking feels a lot more realistic, ill definitely give it a positive. Nothing like having pros shoot super fast pucks at you!. "YOU'RE AWESOME" it said when i finally beat the last level. Awesome game.

Tight and clean cut puzzles from start to end. Great control system. I always felt it was my fault when i died.

Loved it.. This game is educational, and teaches kids about plants and how they grow. It's a simple game and won't take long to complete.. If you're a fan of killing (slaughtering) zombies then this one's for you! I love mowing down hundreds of zombies whilst competing in a race where you can destroy the competitors! Not only that you can upgrade your cars and buy spikes everywhere and cool slicing things down the side for ultimate zombie annihilation! Sounds too crazy, fast and/or intense? Then just casually drive around the city at your leisure carving up zombies as you please. Then there's the fact it's only $10. Srsly guys buy this game you'll love it!. A nice relaxing game with good graphics and sound effects, ideal for taking a break from killing and survival games. Maybe a little pricey even at the discounted price but I think still worth it.. A relaxing little puzzle game.

Shoot colorful balls into different orbits around your ship. Group enough of them together and they pop (thus saving your ship from damage). Seems easy but it gets challenging as the orbits can change based on your actions.

Good value for the low price.. This was a decent and interesting story. I loved getting to know these characters for what I could, but I do feel like there was a lot of information that just simply never got used like it could have. Regardless, I'm still giving this a 9/10 and it's a must read.. I love this game lots of options and you can make it as challenging as you like
